In the Heart of the Beast Puppet and Mask Theatre
In the Heart of the Beast will reduce operations in 2019

Today we announced that HOBT plans to significantly reduce its operations in 2019, representing cuts to staff and programming. This is difficult news to share, and we imagine it will be difficult for some to hear.

Please know that HOBT’s Staff and board are working on identifying possible futures to continue the organization’s work using puppetry and mask performance as tools for social and environmental justice.

HOBT has accomplished tremendous things in its 45-year history. None of this would be possible without the support of neighbors, donors, partner organizations, foundations, and the Minnesota State Arts Board. With ongoing support, we believe that HOBT’s vision, values, and work will persist.

You, our neighbors and supporters, have been the most important part of HOBT’s work over the past 45 years. We are deeply grateful for the many ways you’ve contributed over the years.

In the Heart of the Beast will reduce operations in 2019

In the Heart of the Beast Puppet and Mask Theatre (HOBT), an arts and culture institution impacting generations of South Minneapolis residents and people around the world, plans to significantly reduce its operations in 2019. This decision comes after multiple anticipated income sources for HOBT’s programming year did not materialize. At its current staff and programming levels, HOBT could expect to run out of cash and close permanently as soon as June 2019. Reducing staff and programming will prolong the period of time in which HOBT can develop new strategies to rebuild a more resilient organization.

Most notably, 2019 will be the final year that HOBT will solely produce its annual MayDay celebration, now in its 45th year and scheduled for May 5. While much of the future is uncertain, HOBT will present Puppet Lab performances as planned March 15-16 and March 21-22, will continue to offer residencies in schools, places of worship and other communities, will present Puppet Cabaret an evening of short, experimental puppet acts on February 14th, and will continue to share the Avalon Theater as a rental venue for events and performances.

Executive Director Corrie Zoll, notes,

“This has been a difficult process. After a lot of hard work, we determined that we simply cannot continue on our current path. Our neighbors and allies have been the most important part of HOBT’s work over the past 45 years, and we will include you in conversations about what happens next. Whatever the future brings, we want the important work we have built together to continue to be of value to our neighbors.

HOBT’s decision to reduce its operations comes at a challenging time for mid-sized arts organizations in the Twin Cities. HOBT sees increasing challenges producing mission-driven work in the context of increasing expenses and less stable income, with staff who already give a tremendous amount of themselves at modest pay. HOBT’s challenges are not unique. Peer organizations who have been temporarily or permanently impacted by similar challenges over the past two years include The Soap Factory, VSA Arts, Red Eye Collaborative, Intermedia Arts, NEвиA/Aрт-А-Вирт, Art Shanty Projects, Patrick’s Cabaret, and Bedlam Theatre.

2019 will be the 45th and final year that HOBT will solely produce its annual MayDay celebration. In recent years, HOBT’s MayDay brings in approximately $150,000 in income, mainly from individual donors. Annual costs for producing MayDay, however, generally land between $180,000 and $200,000. In 2018, MayDay operated at a loss of over $50,000 which was covered by reserve funds. HOBT can no longer afford to take on these risks alone.

HOBT’s 2019 MayDay will also be the last MayDay led by Sandy Speier, who shepherded HOBT’s MayDay artistic process from its beginning. Sandy came to this decision a year ago in an effort to make space for new artists to lead. In a letter to the HOBT community from Sandy regarding her transition (full text is available at hobt.org/imagine), Sandy writes:

As our beautiful community here in South Minneapolis grows on this sacred Dakota grounds with increasing and vital diversity, it is my deepest desire to support the evolution of artistic and administrative leadership of MayDay to grow from the rich soil of our diversity.

In the coming months, HOBT will invite conversations with neighbors, artists, partners, and others to imagine how a restructured HOBT might continue to be a relevant and resilient asset to South Minneapolis. Whatever that future of HOBT & MayDay looks like, MayDay 2019 will be a celebration of all that has been and all that is to come.

And that work will continue to rely on your support. Read on to find details on how you can contribute time, resources, knowledge, and care in this precarious moment.

About In the Heart of the Beast HOBT is best known for its MayDay Celebration, held every year since 1975 on the first Sunday of May in South Minneapolis. In 2018, attendance for HOBT’s MayDay was estimated at 80,000. HOBT’s MayDay includes a month-long community engagement process of public workshops to create art for a parade on Bloomington Avenue, a day-long festival in Powderhorn Park, and a Tree of Life Ceremony, which culminates with a flotilla of canoes carrying the Sun across the Lake to wake the Tree of Life and welcome Spring.

Next in Nonprofits 115 – Nonprofit transparency, with Corrie Zoll, In the Heart of the Beast

Posted on January 15, 2019

Corrie Zoll is in the Executive Director of In the Heart of the Beast Puppet and Mask Theatre (HOTB), whose mission is “to bring people together for the common good through the power of puppet and mask performance.” HOTB produces a range of programming, including an annual May Day parade and celebration with tens of thousands of attendees.

The May Day events and other costs over time have led to some organizational challenges for HOTB, and the staff and board decided to have a public conversation about those difficult issues. Corrie talks with host Steve Boland about how HOTB decided to make a public announcement, how to provide layers and depths of information to different audiences, predicting the results of transparency in difficulty, and more.

MayDay in Metamorphosis

HOB’s MayDay Is Taking a Year Off: Save the Date for May 2, 2021

Over the last four months, we, the HOBT Leadership Team, have heard from more than 500 community members and artists about their dreams for the future of HOBT’s MayDay. Themes drawn from this feedback support what we have known for years but have only now documented: MayDay in its current form is not only unsustainable financially and logistically, the creation process systematically marginalizes and appropriates the work of artists of color. This cannot be allowed to continue.

The HOBT Leadership Team has decided that taking a year off from producing MayDay to pause and redesign MayDay is the best way to come back with a stronger, more equitable MayDay in 2021.

We know that for some, this is difficult news to hear. We did not come to this decision lightly. In the coming year, HOBT can choose either to produce the MayDay celebration that South Minneapolis has grown to know and love, or to invest our time and resources in rebuilding that celebration to equitably and resiliently continue as a valuable institution for future generations. We cannot do both.

In the interest of the long-term value of this MayDay celebration, we choose to rebuild. We choose to live into a new kind of working and creating art together: one that is truly collaborative and opens up new opportunities for transformation by placing our commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion at the center and giving power to artists and leaders of color.

The Accountability Wizard® sliding fee structure is 0.02% of an organization’s annual operating expenses. (You can find this amount on the IRS Form 990, Part I, Line 18, current year column.)

There is a minimum fee of $100 and a maximum of $3,000. For example, if your organization’s annual expenses total $3,000,000, your fee would be $600. If your annual expenses total $16,500,000, you would pay the maximum of $3,000 instead of $3,300.

Once you have paid your enrollment fee, you have up to one year to submit your review to the Council. As long as you submit within that year, your account will last for three years from when we provide you the results of our review.

Opportunity costs

The present value of money

Posted on September 4, 2013

Aphorisms abound about money and value, and they are common because they are so quickly instructive. “A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush.” “A penny saved is a penny earned.” Most importantly for the nonprofit crowd, “I will gladly pay you Tuesday for a hamburger today.”

Nonprofits are constantly striving for a little up-front cash to get the work done. There once was a day when it was easier to write a grant request, find a supporter, and get a big award proactively. Yes, the charity had to submit a report at the end of the grant period, but the money appeared up-front. Today’s world of charity funding may sound more like J. Wellington Wimpy, the famous cartoon side-kick to Popeye. The increasingly likely response to funding is “I will gladly pay you Tuesday for program outputs today.”

Transparency in donor engagement
Trick question

Would you rather support a nonprofit with a 10% overhead ratio and a Guidestar Platinum rating - or -

One that cured cancer and housed 5,000 people without homes?
Transparency in results

Is your nonprofit already transparent? I bet you’ve probably have been doing some, if not all of these steps to show transparency already, such as:

- Publishing the IRS Form 990 on your website
- Distributing an annual report detailing impact, client stories, and basic financials.
- Keeping your information on Charity Navigator and GuideStar up-to-date
- Getting the endorsement of a public figure in your community, as well as the Better Business Bureau
- Listing the names and roles of your board of directors directly on your website
- Regularly updating your donors on program results through email, direct mail, your website, or even social media
