

Reflection/Application

Identify a project (or two) where you might apply a developmental evaluation and/or a human-centered design approach.

What is innovative /adaptive about this project or its context?

What questions do you have as you think about using a developmental/human-centered design approach?